1858

Antelope Hills on Canadian R.

Rip Ford (Head TX Ranger) and company surprised and routed the Comanche band of Iron Jacket at the Battle of Antelope on the Canadian R. in Indian Territory, north of Texas. The U.S. Army had built fort & garrisoned Texas, but neither the federal troops nor the Texian forces could slow the pace of the Comanche raiding. They scored occasional successes but the Texas frontier endured the ravages of Indian raids for nearly half a century.

(1800-1859) John Brown

one of the foremost American opponents of slavery. He bore a conspicuous part in the murderous feuds of the Kansas struggle, having moved to OSSAWATTOMIE of that state in 1855, from Torrington, Conn. where he was born. In 1858 he planned to liberate the slaves by seizing the Arsenal at Harper's Ferry, Virginia. Having only 18 men he was, of course, soon overcome and Captured by the regular troops. He was tried and executed at Charlestown, W. Va. His grave is at North Elba, N.Y. The Harper's Ferry incident which occurred Oct 16, 1858 made the name of John Brown famous.
